PAUL RICHARDS IS NAMED PRESIDENT AT BOYS' MEETING

Next Conference of Older Boys of Y. M. C. A. Will Be Held at Beloit Association.

Six hundred and sixty-five delegates attended the thirtieth annual Older Boys' conference this year that was held in Eau Claire last Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Near the close of the conference a general business meeting was held and several important matters were brought up and decided upon.

Paul Richards of this city was nominated by the nominating committee of the conference to be chosen as president for 1916. He was elected to this office and will preside over all the meetings of next year's conference. The combined efforts of the Beloit and Rock county delegations it was voted to hold the 31st conference in the Line city.

The conference this year was very much a success as there were six hundred and sixty-five delegates, not counting the twelve speakers. Of the larger associations Eau Claire had the largest number of delegates present with seventy-two. Wausau had next with 49, Stanley 36, Appleton 34, there were one hundred and six leaders from the various associations.

The number of delegates which represented the different churches were as follows: Methodist, 34; Congregational, 153; Presbyterian, 110; Baptist, 60; Lutheran, 46. Of all the delegates present 479 of them were church members and 196 were non-members. There were 110 delegates present were there representing the Sunday School association, 140 Y. M. C. A., 136 of clubs and other organizations, 24 from the Boy Scout organization, 24 from the college and university, and 11 from the high schools of the state.

The shield given to the organization which showed the greatest efficiency in the work of their boys' department was awarded to the Young Men's Christian Association of the city of Wausau.

In the meetings of the different committees on their particular line of work a number of important resolutions were passed upon. At the general meeting of all the committees resolutions were passed thanking the different organizations and societies of Eau Claire for the hospitality and fine entertainment which was given to all the delegates while attending the conference.

The great significance of this conference which is held every year is that it is entirely managed by boys and most of the speakers on the program are boys. All the delegates there say that the meetings held do them very much good and are especially instructive. The conference next year will probably draw a great many representatives from all parts of the state as Beloit has a new association building which is one of the finest in the state outside of Milwaukee.

SAYS ATHEISTS ARE NOT AT BATTLEFRONT

C. V. Hibbard Talks to Milwaukee Y. M. C. A. Members on European War—Will Be in New York Shortly.

C. V. Hibbard, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Lash of this city, gave a most interesting talk to the Milwaukee Y. M. C. A. on Sunday. Accompanied by Mrs. Hibbard and children, Mr. Hibbard left Janesville on Saturday last for New York City where he will have charge of the Foreign War department of the general Y. M. C. A. work.

With his family he is now staying in New York until Thursday, the guest of his parents.

In his Milwaukee address Mr. Hibbard stated that there are no atheists at the battlefront in France. He has just returned from a personal visit to the battlefields and his remarks were most interesting. In part he said:

"Under the stress of war individual and class selfishness has disappeared. The selfishness of the man of France and England and of Germany. I did not get into Germany but I was thrown in much with German prisoners of war and received much sympathy from our men working in Germany."

"There are no religious prejudices at the front. In France every man prays every day, and he does not do it secretly. There is no question of the belief in God or of the return of religion. This is one of the predominant impressions a man receives after associating with soldiers."

"Every man, German and ally, is sick of the war. They all want peace, but there is a determination among both to fight it out to the end. German prisoners to whom I talked, have told me the day of peace, but there was scarcely a man among them who did not want to get out of the prisoners' camps and get back into action for their country."

"The confidence in the future prevails among the soldiers of both sides. German prisoners, regretting their capture, spoke confidently of their deliverance by their comrades. The French people pessimistic at the start because of the onward rush of the German soldiers and the remembrance of the war of 1870, have regained their confidence in themselves."

"There is no individual hatred in the war. No man at the front wants to kill an enemy for the pure love of killing. Once a man is wounded the result is the same. He is in terrible pain, he is in a hospital, no matter what uniform they wear, are given the best possible care."

"The most striking feature in the light-heartedness which the soldiers go into action despite the enormous casualties and the almost absolute certainty of death or injury is the result of the return of the entire British expeditionary force of 100,000 men sent to France at the outbreak of the war. has been wiped out through killed, wounded or prisoners. The percentage of casualties is awful. Under the conditions of the war, every engagement practically every man is killed or wounded."

"In the face of these facts men go into battle willingly, bravely and confidently. This is true of allies and of Germans. German prisoners showed the same light-heartedness in the early days of the war, despite the terrible slaughter. France has lost a million men, yet the troops never falter and are even anxious to get into action."

BASKETBALL WILL START DEC. TENTH FOR THE LAKOTAS

Lakota Cardinals Will Open Season Against Beloit Team at Auditorium Next Friday.

On December tenth the Lakota Cardinals, Janesville's crack basketball team, will swing into action, playing the Beloit city team at the Auditorium in the first game of the season. After Beloit comes the best schedule of games that has ever been booked for any basketball team in this vicinity, and Janesville is going to see some interesting basketball this winter.

The Cardinals are going to do even a better team than last year, though their record then was an enviable one for any five. It is the present plans to stage at least one game a week. This weekly game will be held on Friday nights before the holiday season and on Saturday nights after New Year's. The Auditorium building is being repaired, cleaned up and many alterations made for its betterment. The inside will be painted, cleaned, new rails built, an improved floor, with more seating accommodations. The band stand will be moved to the north side from its present location on the south section.

Six men will wear the Cardinals' uniform all through the season, unless present plans change. For guards Manager George Caldwell will play. Raymond Elder, the best running guard that ever wore a high school or college uniform, and Morris Motsey, captain of the Dubuque football team, will crack player on the high school. Last year when these two were in the defense positions the opposing score would always be low. A. Wood, a member of the state high title team, will play forward with Korst, and Hemming center. Janesville fans will see a new man in Stegeman, football coach at Beloit, who will be with the Cardinals this season. Stegeman is a former star of the University of Chicago, and is a player of great ability.

After Beloit comes Rockford, with the celebrated Fogarty and Solon, the Minnesota football player disqualified this season. Fogarty is staging basketball at Rockford this winter and Solon under contract for playing. Belvidere will have her usual strength on the court, and these three teams will play here before Christmas.

Then follows the hard schedule. Among the more important teams that will play here are: Evans Wagner's All Stars of Pittsburgh, and this team is captained by Wagner, veteran Tiger shortstop, Oswego, New York, as good as Troy; Buffalo Germania; New Nationals, Chicago; I. A. C.; two games with Red Wing C. I. A. C., and the strongest northern Wisconsin teams.

Under this year's rules there promises to be less rough playing than in former years, and what is more the public supporters are demanding the elimination of the "rough house" that has featured some of the games. Under the new code no three players can come in contact, accidentally or otherwise.

BASKETBALL NEXT FOR HIGH SCHOOL

Thirty Men Report for First Call of Practice at the High School.—Three Veterans Back.

Basketball is the next line of sport on the calendar for the Janesville high school now. That the basketball schedule has been completed, and Coach Keck issued the first call for candidates tonight. The football team was out with anyone would be very satisfactory this year, but the chances for a winning basketball team are very bright at present.

Last night about thirty men reported for practice, among whom were some of the veterans of last year's squad, Captain Weirick, Richards and Lee, and a number of other good men. The church teams last year developed some good players who probably will fill in the great hole left by the loss of four of last year's first team. Lee, who substituted last year, will most likely get his old position as guard, with Richards and Weirick as forwards.

There is so much material that it would be hard to say just who will get the other positions. Cronin, who played on one of the church teams last year, ought to make a strong bid for the center position, while in the center position it is hard to say just who will make a bid for that. Hard workouts will be given every night from now on, as the first game of the season will be on December 10th with the Y. M. C. A. team. The schedule for this season has been about completed with the exception of three dates. The schedule is as follows:

Dec. 7—Y. M. C. A., at Y. M. C. A. Dec. 10—Delavan, at Janesville. Dec. 17—Jefferson, at Jefferson. Jan. 7—Juniata. Jan. 14—Stoughton, at Stoughton. Jan. 21—Madison, at Janesville. Jan. 28—Waukesha, at Waukesha. Feb. 4—Richland Center, at Richland Center. Feb. 11—Beloit, at Janesville. Feb. 18—University High, at Madison. Feb. 25—Open. Mar. 3—University High, at Janesville. Mar. 10—Kenosha, at Janesville. Mar. 17—Open. Mar. 24—Open.

FOOTBALL TITLE TO JUNIORS; WIN 19-0

Juniors at High School Win Honors of School by Winning Deciding Game From the Sophomores.

In the championship class football game last night after school at the Fair Grounds the juniors won the title of the high school when they trampled on their younger class men and went over the line for three touchdowns and kicked one goal. The game ended 19 to 0 in their favor.

The field was covered with snow and the temperature was like mid-winter, but nevertheless both teams played fast and sure. In the first few minutes of play the juniors took the ball up the field many yards at a time and on an end run Pond went over for the first touchdown. On account of the fast falling of darkness, no time was taken out between the halves so that the game could be finished. Later in the game Kenning went over for two more touchdowns on line plunges. Kenning kicked one goal out of three chances and the final score was 19 to 0. Lineups:

MACOMBER IS NAMED CAPTAIN OF ILLINOIS ELEVEN FOR NEXT YEAR

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Champaign, Ill., Nov. 30.—Bart Macomber of Oak Park, for two years right half back on the University of Illinois football team, and by some selected as an all-western star by the critics this year, was elected captain of the Illinois for 1916.

The choice was made by his teammates tonight at the annual football dinner tendered by C. B. Hatch and J. M. Kaufman at the Hotel Beardsley in Champaign. Macomber's selection is considered an excellent omen for the 1916 season and is approved by the rooters.

Macomber's punting and all-round work won him a regular berth his sophomore year on Zuppke's championship team and he was even better this year. He was the "life-saver" in the Ohio game which the Illini so nearly lost because of crimples.

Five Wisconsin hunters were killed in the north woods hunting deer, the lowest number within the last four years. No one was reported injured. The season ends at midnight Tuesday. In 1914 there were twenty-four deaths and twenty-six injuries reported.

Wisconsin's "one buck" law is believed by many hunters to be responsible for the few fatalities, as the hunter is required to exercise more care while hunting owing to the heavy penalty in case he kills a doe. Following is a list of deer hunting fatalities in Wisconsin this year:

Nov. 12—Oliver Harris, 15 years old, of Nashville, accidentally killed by Dennis Sparks, who stumbled while hunting deer near Enterprise.

Nov. 15—Pearl Haatin of Frederick, Polk county, killed by the accidental discharge of his own rifle when he stumbled while hunting deer. He was the "life-saver" of Phelps, mistaken for a deer and instantly killed by an unidentified hunter who ran away.

Nov. 23.—Joseph Smeates of Amos, shot when he stumbled and a bullet from his rifle penetrated his heart.

Nov. 26—Ewald Klubunde of Eau Claire, accidentally killed when he slipped and fell from a stump.

BLUE RIBBON SQUAD TAKE GAME FROM ALL STARS

Last night at the Miller alleys the Blue Ribbon five broke their losing streak and won a game from the All Stars by a margin of 146 pins. Hubel was high man, rolling 212 pins, while Robbins followed him close with 210 pins. In all three events the Ribbon team won from their opponents by a good number of pins. Lineups:

Comiskey has turned down the proposition of Grand Slam for Fournier, as was to be expected. Fournier, while not a finished player in either the infield or outfield, is one of the Sox best hitters, and as Rowland is particularly anxious to have the best hitting team in the league in the 1916 campaign, room will be found for Fournier in the outfield, for he has proved himself an absolute failure at the first base station.

JIM COFFEY SINKS GUNBOAT SMITH IN THE FOURTH ROUND

Dublin Giant Who Lost to Moran Re-deems Himself by Knocking Out Gunner in New York.

New York, Nov. 3.—Jim Coffey re-established himself in the graces of New York fight circles last night by knocking out Gunboat Smith in the fourth round of their scheduled ten round bout. Coffey swung a hard overhand right in the fourth which caught Smith on the point of the jaw, sending him to the mat for the full count.

Coffey's superior strength told in the battle, as he led all the way. In the first minute of the fourth Coffey landed a hard right and rushed Smith to close quarters smashing home uppercuts until the overhand right went to its fatal mark on the chin.

Philadelphia, Nov. 30.—Jimmy Murphy conquered Ad Wolgast, ex-champion, in six slashing rounds of milling. In the first round Murphy came near knocking Wolgast out, working his fists like pistons in close quarters. Ad's ring generalship saved him and he fought savagely to the finish.

Honest, Welsh to Fight. Akron, O., Nov. 30.—Reddy Welsh, lightweight champion, yesterday signed for a fifteen round bout with Johnny Griffiths, the crack Akron lightweight, to take place here on December 21st.

Mike O'Dowd Wins. Milwaukee—Mike O'Dowd, the St. Paul welterweight who recently beat Soldier Bartfield, won in ten fast rounds from Ed Kramer, the clay champion of Milwaukee, last night. "Perpetual Motion Mike" as O'Dowd is known, fought an aggressive battle and overcame the speed and cleverness of Kramer. Joe O'Brien, out-slugged Hall Clark in the semi-final bout in six rounds.

McCue Lands K. O. Racine, Wis., Nov. 30.—Joe McCue, Ted Hayes in the seventh round of a ten-round bout last night. McCue was too experienced for the Milwaukee novice.

Akron—Johnny Griffiths outpointed Matt Wells, the sensational English lightweight in their twelve-round bout last night. Griffiths met the speedy Brit with an attack which he could not solve.

HUNTERS KILL PAIR OF FIGHTING BUCKS

Two Dead Stags With Horns Locked in Death Grapple Brought Into Duluth Today.

Duluth, Nov. 30.—With horns locked, killed as they fought for the supremacy of the forest, a pair of buck deer was brought into Duluth today by Peter Deloyia. According to Deloyia, he was with three companions when they heard sounds of animal conflict. Horns clashing resounded through the woods. Believing that two bull moose were battling, the hunters approached the conflict with great caution. It was needless, however, for two bucks unconscious of all that was going on around them, battled for life.

A lone side anxiously watching the battle, was a doe and a spike hunter. Not wishing to spoil the exciting scene, the sportsmen remained quiet until the bucks became locked. When seeing they could not free themselves, the hunters approached, felt the animals with their hands, and then fired.

Although the first ten days of the big game season were rather slow owing to rain and no deer were killed, the last ten days have been great according to reports of hunters. More moose have been shot this fall than in many years previous, while deer have been just as plentiful.

Big game hunters of eastern cities are turning to Minnesota forests because of decreasing number of deer and moose in the woods of Maine. Approximately ninety hundred hunters took to the woods this morning in St. Louis county, Minnesota, alone.

Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh club, has a whole safe full of applications for Fred Clarke's job. There is hardly a man going into Pittsburgh which does not bring some new applicant for the job to the attention of the Pirates' owner. But Barney is not making any announcements as to who will get the appointment. He says it is a very important matter, and that he will have to give every application very careful consideration before he can arrive at a decision. The chances are there will be an official announcement as to who the lucky man is about the time the National league meets in New York December 14.

WINTER SPORTS NOW IN THE LIMELIGHT

Boxing, Bowling and Basketball Hold Interest of Janesville Sportsmen.

With the shades drawn on football, the winter sports are paged in sportsdom for the attention of the athletic world. Boxing, the chief winter sport, and boxing ever increasing in popularity in this city, skating, skiing, will now occupy the glare of the spotlight for the next four months until baseball crawls out and escapes the hot stove league. Bowling will come in for its just share of attention, as interest in the game this season in Janesville has increased by at least a hundred per cent.

At the Y. M. C. A. winter classes in basket ball, volley ball and gymnastic work will have added attention. Soon the Janesville Cardinals crack state champions in basket ball will be defending their title, and the high school plans a hard schedule in the court game. At the "Y" basket ball teams are under organization and will meet both local and out of the city fives.

Indications are that there will be no boxing in the city this year. But Janesville has plenty of prize ring followers who watch with close interest the results of the arena bouts. Monthly matches are to be held at Beloit, and Milwaukee ring encounters will attract many from this city. It is promised that many big matches will be staged in Milwaukee during the winter and the boxing fans here will not go hungry.

Basket ball in the main will be confined to the high school and the Lakota Cardinals. The high school will have hard sledding to repeat their records of the last four years, but will have a squad that should at least win the title of this district, southern Wisconsin. The Lakotas will be better than ever. For guards they will have Elder and Deaton, two of the best in the city has ever turned out. At forward, Atwood, star of Carroll college, and Korst of Beloit college, two speedy and sure basket throwers. At center, Hemming will play, and under university coaching his playing has improved greatly. Stegeman, coach at Beloit, and former Chicago varsity player, will sub, and if he proves equal to the task, will take the place of one of the Cardinal regulars. Hunting will soon be over. The duck season closed yesterday after a successful season, especially during the last ten days. The time is also up on wild geese and brandt despite the fact that these shy fowl are just beginning to put in an appearance. Rabbits may be shot until Jan. 1. Trapping is just beginning to be good and the farmer boys are now seeking to have the smelly and black polecat or skunk step into the pans of their traps. Muskrat fur will not be in its best condition until further cold weather. Squirrel, of which a goodly number have been obtained, may be killed until Feb. 1.

HUNTERS IN STATE SEEK REPEAL OF "BUCK" LAW AS A HUNTING MENACE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Madison, Wis., Nov. 30.—With the close of the deer hunting season today, efforts are already being made to procure the repeal of the "one buck" law passed by the last legislature. The law has been pronounced a failure by most of the hunters, although the conservative commission still upholds it.

Opponents of the law declare that few hunters can determine the sex of a deer before they shoot. They are supposed to see the horns, but there would be few of the animals procured if this were carried out it is claimed. The result is if a hunter shoots when he sees a movement in the brush and kills a doe, the carcass is allowed to lie on the ground and rot. The hunter then goes ahead until he kills a buck, thus killing perhaps more than one deer.

The Antigo Gun club is preparing a protest to file at the next meeting of the legislature. Statistics have been compiled by the club on shipment of deer this season, which will be submitted to the legislature. It is claimed that the carcasses of hundreds of does were allowed to waste this year because of the law. That the measure has been a success in cutting down the number of hunting accidents this year is denied. There have been nearly as many or more persons killed and wounded this season as in past years, hunters claimed.

One of the Gazette's most interesting pages is the want ad page. Read it.

Sport Snap Shots MORRIS MILLER

Miller Huggins, besides being a most capable player and manager, also is some business man. The diminutive leader of the Cardinals is given credit for keeping the Britons in baseball. Soon after the season was over Phil Ball, owner of the St. Louis Red club, got busy trying to buy the Cardinals from the Britons. Huggins got wind of what was going on and quietly slipped into St. Louis and urged the Britons not to sell at any price. Huggins told his employers that the Federal league should be allowed to go its own way. He presented a strong argument, and contending that the Cardinals could not be harmed by the Feds and with a successful season could easily overcome the losses suffered in 1915.

With the coming of the annual meeting of the two major leagues the magnates are beginning to talk trades, as usual. Griffith is perhaps better fortified with trading material than any of his rivals, and for this reason is picked to really benefit his team by a series of transactions during the coming American league meeting. Gandil, Almsmith, Morgan and Boehling will all be on the market, and there are several clubs which could use these players to advantage. Stallings, it is understood, may trade Tyler, his left-handed pitcher, for Tom Clarke, the hard hitting catcher of the Cincinnati Reds. Stallings is said to have soured on Red Smith, the Braves' third baseman, and will try to trade him.

IT WAS ALL ON ACCOUNT OF A MISTAKE.

SAY, BUTHE'S HAD! GEE WHIZ!

JUDGE, I'LL BET SOMEBODY HAS TRICKED HIM. THAT'S ORDINARY TOBACCO, AND HE USES THE NEW CUT REAL TOBACCO CHEW.

W-B CUT CHEWING MEANS MORE COMFORT, MORE SATISFACTION, IT COSTS LESS BECAUSE YOU USE LESS TOBACCO. A LITTLE CHEW SATISFIES.

A MAN who uses only ordinary tobacco would probably never kick if somebody changed brands on him. But W-B CUT Chewing—the Real Tobacco Chew, new cut, long shred—is so different from ordinary tobacco, so much more satisfying that nothing can take its place with a man who knows. Get a pouch of W-B CUT Chewing and give it a quality test. You can tell. "Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste."

UNITED WE STAND.

Another year of politics is about to open. Once in every four years we have the disturbing element of a national election. Once in two years the majority of the elect new state officers. At any rate, every year is the year and politicians all over the country are anxiously awaiting the call to battle.

Perhaps there is no institution in the American republic of ours that gives so much real satisfaction as a genuine political fight. For years the battle in national politics was one-sided. Then came the split in the ranks of the dominant republican party and the democrats ascended to power. That was four years ago next November, in nineteen hundred and eleven.

While there is no question that Woodrow Wilson will be a candidate to succeed himself for the democratic presidential nomination, there is many a slip between the cup and the lip. Even though the nomination be secure, then comes the election.

In order to defeat the democratic party the republicans must present a united front. There can be no division of forces with any hope of successful issue. United the republican party must stand, or divided they will fall.

The old parable of the man who built his house on the shifting sands is true when it refers to politics. In order to succeed there must be a concerted effort of all factions, for the democratic party has demonstrated that they can win against a disunited foe.

Here in Wisconsin the same problem confronts the voters. There is every indication of a merry state fight in the republican ranks. The first call to arms will doubtless come early in January when the committee, that had charge of the last republican state convention which suggested the nomination of Emmanuel Philipp for governor, met and formulated the platform which resulted in Philipp's election.

It is possible that a second call will be issued at the same time by the chairman of the republican state central committee, who will call his fellow workers together to discuss ways and means of saving Wisconsin for the G. O. P.

Still a third call will come when Senator La Follette decides upon his own plans and sends out his orders to his workers to follow instructions and get busy to secure delegates to the national republican convention pledged to his ideals.

All three calls will be for the object of securing a delegation to represent Wisconsin at the republican national convention. The conservatives will doubtless favor a delegation headed by Governor Philipp and true and united conservative republicans.

The state central committee chairman has intimated that his plan is to call the attention of his committee to the need of a strictly republican delegation, regardless of previous condition of political servitude, but republicans, who are to go as uninstructed delegates to the big gathering.

Just what La Follette's call will designate is not known. Unless the Wisconsin delegation is instructed to cast their ballot for La Follette for the presidential nomination, it is probable it will be uninstructed. At least that is the thought suggested by the leaders of the conservative and even the state central committee chairman approves of such a plan.

Then will follow the state campaign, of really more vital interest to Wisconsin residents than the national political and which will be a busy year in suit all classes of politicians and surprises for many.

LOCAL INSTITUTIONS

It is the pride of every community to point to local institutions that have grown up and flourished. The real value of a Young Men's Christian Association can not be over-estimated, and if this is true of such an organization for young men, what would not be the value of a Young Women's association? This idea is not a new one in Janesville, by any means, but thus far nothing really definite has been done towards its organization.

The Gazette is always ready to throw its columns open to a full discussion of any subject of general interest and it is certain the public would be most glad to learn the opinions of various persons who have given the idea their thought and attention. We know what the Y. M. C. A. is doing for the young men of the city and with this in mind think that a similar organization could do the same thing for the young women of the city.

Madison and other cities have such organizations that have proven most successful. Why not experiment here at home? Begin in a small way if you are not certain of results and then watch the proposition grow and develop. Make it so wide in its scope that it will reach all classes of the working girls and others who would derive the greatest benefit from it.

The ladies of the city have demonstrated that they are more than a little interested in civic affairs. The rest rooms, and their efforts for the betterment of many other conditions show that they can be trusted to handle such an affair were it once started, to a most successful issue.

Do not be afraid to voice your individual sentiments on this important matter through the columns of the press. It is a matter of importance and should not be neglected.

GASTRONOMIC EXPLOITS.

Among the achievements of the American people must be reckoned their capacity to consume a colossal amount of food, particularly on such occasions as Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's dinners. The sociologists might well investigate whether any other nation ever executed such stupendous gastronomic feasts.

The present generation has suffered to some extent in appetite because more of us live indoor lives. But still the American people are very largely an outdoor race. A great many people pursue athletic sports. The immigrant classes come from work in the fields and have wide and hungry mouths. And the proportion of people engaged in outdoor work on farms is still large. Also there are many people who spent their youth in the pioneer work outdoors. So a very large part of our people still live lives, or have acquired habits that stimulate great appetites.

The old-fashioned housewife was not ready for winter without a vast store of pies, cakes, and preserves. But great as this store might be, it rapidly melted into cavernous gullets. The Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners are still occasions in millions of families where the national capacity for large eating is displayed. After the ordinary worker in a shop or office has partaken of one of these feasts, about all he can do is to lie down and trust to a beneficent Providence. After he has filled himself with turkey and probably some other rich food, he is eager to feast on some heavy course of game and the perils of a voluminous dessert have not yet even been sighted. The townsman's undeveloped maw gasps and cringes before these barbaric banquets.

In town life the cost of living has abridged these gorgeous layouts. But in many a farm family, raising its own food on which no middlemen or trusts lay a tax, where housewives tell a story in cookery, gastronomic triumphs are still recorded that fully emulate the deeds of the fathers.

Eastern women suffragists will continue to keep their powder dry and wait their next opportunity for an onslaught on "mere man." One would think that waiting was not a woman's forte, but it is proving to be.

Perhaps Colonel Roosevelt and Colonel Bryan have decided to settle their dispute by resorting to a lung testing contest. Two such heroes ought at least to agree on some minor point.

Elihu Root may have to come out of his shell and actually permit himself to be nominated for president just to satisfy the majority of the republicans in this country.

Certainly these New Haven railroad officials are frank in their accounts of how they looted the company's treasury of its spare cash and made the public like it.

Governor Philipp still continues to make his weekly pilgrimages to various school houses and church gatherings and thus become acquainted with all his people.

Would it not cap the climax if President Wilson should decide to elope with Mrs. Galt instead of waiting for all the fuss of a formal wedding?

As was the famous charge of the Six Hundred, some aspiring Briton has blundered when his minions seized the Hocking.

One golf enthusiast writes one of the charms of the game is the opportunity it gives for wearing sensible clothes.

PITTSBURGH BOOMS WITH WAR BUSINESS

Every Manufacturing Plant in City Reported to Be Running With Full Force.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Pittsburgh, Nov. 30.—The Pittsburgh foreign trade commission in announcing it was unable to find a year's factory for a manufacturer desirous of locating in Pittsburgh district, stated today that every manufacturing establishment in and around the city capable of being put in operation without expenditures equal to the cost of new construction was now in use. The new business which makes this condition possible, the commission stated, was due to orders placed by agents of the entente allies now located here and to orders to Canada. Not all of the business is war material although it forms a large proportion of the output.

Announcement by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad yesterday of the embargo on steel products for export passing through New York terminals will not seriously affect this district, only twenty-five or a day being shipped to that point, while some eighty cars make up the steel trains for Philadelphia and Baltimore. Much for foreign ports other than those in Europe.

Reports from other railroads leading to the east, indicate every precaution is being taken to prevent added congestion at Atlantic terminals. Three thousand cars loaded with export steel said to be in the yards at Hollidaysburg are closely guarded by police until they can be sent on their way.

ISAAC F. CONNORS DIES VERY SUDDENLY

DEMISE OCCURRED LAST EVENING AT FAMILY HOME ON CHERRY STREET.

ILL ABOUT ONE YEAR

Sickness Extended Over Long Period. But Mr. Connors Was About and Active in Business.

Isaac F. Connors, for twenty-eight years prominent in business and political circles in southern Wisconsin, and for a similar period recognized as one of the leading business men of the city, passed away suddenly Monday evening at the family home at 208 Cherry street.

Mr. Connors' demise was sudden. He was apparently well and in full health throughout the day and during the early evening made no complaint. He had been slightly indisposed Saturday evening, but no more attention was paid to the matter than to any of the other numerous spells he had gone through during the past year. Mr. Connors' death occurred shortly after 10 o'clock. It was due to angina pectoris, or neuralgia of the heart, from which he had been a sufferer for some time.

Thanksgiving Mr. and Mrs. Connors were at Des Moines, Ill., and spent the day. Friday they visited in Chicago with relatives and returned to Janesville Saturday noon. Mr. Connors was down during the day following, and until he reached home was in the best of spirits. Here he was subject to the first symptoms of the illness which eventually led up to his death.

Isaac Francis Connors was fifty-three years of age. He was the son of Patrick Connors, and was born in Janesville on August 7, 1862. He received his early education at St. Joseph's convent school here. Sister Mary Joseph, who still takes an active part in the business and duties of the firm, was his first teacher.

Later Mr. Connors went to Milwaukee, where he entered St. Francis Seminary. He also attended a Catholic college in Chicago.

For twenty-eight years Mr. Connors has conducted a wholesale liquor business at 214 West Milwaukee street. He inherited the business from his father, Patrick Connors, who established the business over thirty years ago. Both father and son used the same building on the same site during their business careers.

On May 1, 1886, Mr. Connors was united in marriage to Julia Heston. Mr. Connors' death ended a period of twenty-nine years of happily married life. Besides the widow he is survived by five children, Patrick, Charles, John, Francis, and Emma. The latter is a student at Dubuque College, of Dubuque, Iowa, and is now on his way home.

Mr. Connors is also survived by two sisters, Mary and Mrs. Ella Anzle, and by four brothers, John, Joseph, James and Edward Connors, all of Janesville.

Mr. Connors was a very regular business man, was also active in other lines. He was a keen business man and interested himself to the utmost in all of his various undertakings. He was a director of the Merchants & Savings Bank and also of the Rock County Telephone company, being one of the men who first organized this concern.

Mr. Connors was also a partner in the firm of Brown & Connors.

His business integrity was of the highest order and drew about him a host of friends in the business and social circles.

His home and every day life was of a parallel nature and a large circle of acquaintances mourn his passing and offer their condolence to the bereaved family.

Mr. Connors for nearly twenty years was a trustee of St. Patrick's Catholic church. He had been a member of the board of directors of the Mt. Olivet Cemetery association from its organization until about a year ago when he resigned both this office and that of church trustee. In fraternal organizations Mr. Connors was active. He was a member of Branch No. 60 Catholic Knights of Wisconsin and of St. Joseph's Court No. 229 of the Order of Foresters.

In politics Mr. Connors was a staunch democrat. He was personally acquainted with the party leaders of the state and was recognized as a leading light in political affairs of Rock county.

The funeral services will be held Thursday morning at 9 o'clock from St. Patrick's Catholic church. Fraternal organizations of which Mr. Connors was a member are to attend in body. The remains will be laid to rest in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

MANY PUPILS TAKE CORRECT SPEECH WORK

Over One Hundred Take Work In Correct Speech Classes in the Schools.

For the past few years the Board of Education of Janesville has been maintaining classes for the correcting of a person's speech. In the classes this year over one hundred students are taking the work under the supervision of Miss Rudersdorf. She has four classes in the subject. In the morning she divides her time with the Adams and Jefferson schools and in the afternoon she has classes at the West and Washington schools. Pupils in these classes go to the school which is near their own and attend the classes.

Recently Dr. Blanton of the University of Wisconsin and Inspector of Correct Speech Cook visited the local schools on an inspection tour and approved much of the work which was going on here.

TELLS OF WORK OF ENGLISH IN THEIR AIRSHIP LABORS

Notwithstanding the heavy demands upon the industry caused by the extension of the fighting area, winter will, as it did last year, permit some concentration for new effort in the spring, and new types that may be in process of evolution will find next spring the time of their effective appearance.

It is well that something like a pause should occur now, for of late, as a result of the big attacks, the Fifth Arm has suffered losses, and the supply of personnel has to be kept up, as well as that of machines. When it is remembered that very few pilots endure the strain of continual war-flying for more than three months without needing a complete rest, it will be seen that this is not a simple matter, especially as a certain proportion of the men who learn to fly prove, for one reason or another, when it comes to the real test, quite unequal to campaigning.

In the winter the making of machines can go on without abatement, and our resources are steadily being increased; but the making of pilots is hindered by the decrease of the daylight period and the smaller proportion of fine days.

For reasons already given in these notes, the activity of the Zeppelins may even be greater in the winter than in the summer, on account of the long nights.

It is safe to assume that both our selves and the enemy will in the coming spring put big multiple-engine aeroplanes into the field. Already a few are in use; the Russians have their Sikorsky, the Germans a dual-engine craft called in dispatches a "German wireless" and the other day the German wireless reported that an English "Bristol" biplane, carrying three machine guns, had been shot down. The last-named is not necessarily a multiple-engine machine.

Descriptions in the foreign press of a new British army aeroplane by correspondents who have been accorded the privilege of a tour of the Royal Aircraft factory and passenger flights on Service machines, have very properly, to convey a clear idea of the characteristics and qualities of the machine. We are given to understand that it is a very wonderful machine, that the factory is a phenomenally brilliant concern and that the authorities are really so splendid that the ordinary citizen should count himself lucky to see them in person. Having them to look after his interests in the aerial war.

At first sight it may appear curious that English newspapers have not been given these facilities. But a moment's reflection will provide the answer; the censor would not permit the most meagre reports on such a subject to be published. We cannot stop them appearing in the foreign press, and thence, it appears, they may be quoted.

Hundreds of inventions. Having read all the accounts carefully, the writer is unable to perceive in what respect this new and much-advertised machine is superior to certain craft already on war service, the productions of private firms, "the gun of marvellous precision" and the death-dealing projectile are quite old friends. The climbing rate of nearly 1,000 feet per minute is not impressive if it does not mean that the pace can be kept up beyond 2,000 feet. As for the new models which embody "hundreds of inventions," the secrets of which are held by the British war office—well, comment is needless. Anyway, if another Zeppelin comes to London and escapes destruction, the public will feel "sold," for we are assured that the new craft is superior to the big German airships in every quality.

One cannot help thinking that some of the leading British aeroplane firms who are, to the writer's knowledge, producing war craft as good if not superior to the one described, might have adopted the same method of obtaining publicity as the Germans, so successfully by the Royal Aircraft factory. They should by this time be well aware that in cleverness of this order the R. A. F. excels, and if it pays that concern to cultivate publicity, how much more should it suit the book of firms which have the future of industry to consider.

Flying in winter. With winter at hand, it is assumed by some writers that the Fifth Arm must enter upon a period of complete repose. The experience of last winter, however, does not justify this assumption, although in the nature of things rather less flying is done in the winter than in the summer, if only for the reason that the daily period of prohibitive darkness is longer.

As regards the western theatre of war, winter may mean the cessation of big advance movements. But even this does not bring an end to the activities of the airman, who must still reconnoitre, and who still can worry the enemy's railways and depots, not to mention his aircraft and his airship harbors.

It appears that on the eastern front winter does not bring about the virtual stalemate of entrenchments which occurs in the west, although the almost Arctic cold must to a great extent paralyze movement.

Aircraft in the Balkans. At the moment the Dardanelles situation raises an important question: We do not know whether aircraft must or can continue in service there. But in the Balkans a new theatre of war for British arms has been opened, and here the factor of movement and surprise will for the present rule, calling for special aircraft activity. It must not be forgotten that the productive capacity of France and Britain is being drawn upon more and more for the present rule, calling for special aircraft activity. It must not be forgotten that the productive capacity of France and Britain is being drawn upon more and more for the present rule, calling for special aircraft activity.

It is disappointing to find that in France a league has been formed to urge the government to build 5,000 aeroplanes; as if the French government were not as fully aware as our own of the great services to be rendered by aircraft and were not already straining every nerve to surpass the enemy's efforts. Quite possibly the league has a trade axe to grind. Anyway, like similar movements in England, it fails to appreciate the difficulties in the way of manufacture and testing, and of providing first-class pilots at a greater rate than is now being done.

Old Volunteers Respond. Last week's note urging the employment of veteran marksmen for defense against aircraft was, judging from the amount of correspondence it has evoked, a timely one. There evidently are, as the writer surmised, a large number of veteran rifle shots and artillerymen available for duty of this kind. Our officer, formerly in the Volunteer Force, states that he would be able to procure 1,500 veterans.

Too Hard for Mr. Gloom. J. Fuller Gloom: "A famous scientist declares that only one person in every twenty-five thousand thinks. This is the very reason why I have quit arguing with my fellow men. It is too hard to make the other twenty-four thousand nine hundred and ninety-nine think."

Mike Cantillon, who with his brother Joe owns the Millers, also is the owner of the site on which the Federal league ball park in Chicago is built. Cantillon leased the site to the Chicago club at a big figure, and incidentally put a provision in the lease which binds the Federal league never to touch a play on the Minneapolis club. This agreement is so arranged that if it is broken the lease would be automatically abrogated and the Feds would be without a home in Chicago. There are no wiser men in baseball than the Cantillons. They have proved this in all their transactions since they have been in business for themselves, and their agreement with the Feds is said to have been a masterpiece of business judgment.

PRISONER IS SHOT IN JAIL DELIVERY

Matt Murray Escapes and C. F. Lewis Shot By Sheriff at Jefferson County Jail.

On Monday the Jansville police received word from the Jefferson county authorities of the escape of Matt Murray and the shooting of C. F. Lewis in a jail delivery at Jefferson Sunday night. Murray is the New York alleged gunman whom Chief of Police Champion and Fred Gillman of Evansville questioned at the Jefferson jail recently, and he was being held for shooting at a policeman at Watertown, where he was captured after a chase of several days' duration.

Lewis is an alleged forger and his addition from the outlet wound inflicted by Sheriff William Toulton is declared to be serious. When Sheriff Toulton went to lock the prisoners up, Lewis asked for a drink of water and Murray stated he had forgotten his tobacco. While the sheriff was waiting Lewis, Murray slugged him. Sheriff Toulton reeling under the blow, turned and knocked Murray to the floor. The prisoner arose and fled to the corridor, followed by Lewis. They ran into the basement and dove head-first through a double window to the jail yard.

Toulton ran to his office, obtained his revolver and on reaching the door saw Lewis running. He shouted for him to stop, but when the escaping prisoner failed to heed his command, he fired a bullet through his hat and fired twice in the air, missing. He shot the fourth time and the bullet struck Lewis in the back, inflicting a dangerous wound.

Murray, the escaped prisoner, the police here say, has a very noticeable scar on the left side of his face running from the forehead down under the chin. When Gillman and I were at the prison looking for him, he passed the remark that it would be easy to identify Murray because of the jagged scar in case of escape. Now its a case of seeing if he can be identified if he comes this way," said Chief Champion today. The man escaped without a coat and is a dangerous criminal.

"MAID OF AMERICA" LEAVES JANSVILLE

"Maid of America" has left Jansville for the gay, bright lights of Chicago or St. Paul, where the world is more sympathetic than here and where the police department is not so strict with regards rules of appearing on the street after dark. Chief of Police Champion took the situation in hand yesterday afternoon and before the night was over, "packed" away eight of the girls to Chicago, two to St. Paul, while the others had left previously.

Ever since McSherry, manager and the contortionist dancer, left secretly with the one hundred dollars, intended by the company to transport them to Elroy, the troupe has barely existed yesterday an agent from the show's headquarters at St. Paul, named Hart, came to Jansville for the purpose of reorganizing the cast and continuing their engagements. The chorus, however, objected, having had enough of the one night stands, and the incident hardships, refusing to budge from Jansville. Chorus men complained to the police that Hart was using funds intended to pay their bills and tickets for the big city.

A patrolman first took into custody an erstwhile actor named Clifford, who was sitting on a sidewalk on Milwaukee street, reciting some alleged comedy to pedestrians. The police officer could not see the laugh and Clifford went to the station. Hart came next. He was the one with the money. At first he denied having funds and Chief Champion escorted him to the cells where he spent an hour or so, thinking it over. After the short confinement Hart pleaded to be allowed to settle matters and "dug-up" forty-five dollars—all that was left of the show funds. Champion then took inventory and purchased eight tickets for Chicago, two for St. Paul, and gave the show people transportation to the places they desired to go and the balance was given to Clifford. The tickets came to $30.15. One chorus girl, with tears in her eyes, explained to the chief that all four of them had to eat since Thursday was doughnuts, crackers and lots of water, and for Thanksgiving dinner they had crackers with a dessert of cheese.

"I am going home to the farm and reside. Honest, I will sacrifice my stage name and fame, to have a good meal and to be sure of three square meals a day. And believe me, no promise of a prima donna contract will ever stir me away from the farm. I am through."

KILLARNEY GIRLS SING IRISH SONGS

Apollo Audience Hears Concert That Makes Strong Appeal to All.

Replete with Irish melodies and stories, the entertainment given at the Apollo Theatre yesterday by The Killarney Girls, was a thoroughly enjoyable one, appealing to lovers of good music as well as to the descendants of Erin.

The young ladies were typically costumed in green peasant gowns and wore the unconquerable smile of Erin, giving withal a true Gaelic atmosphere. Especially pleasing was Miss Rita Rich. She is a charming impersonator. Her work is varied and versatile, and fairly brims over with her happy comprehension of it. It would be hard to choose between her character songs and her child impersonations, but that breathless little girl, tugging at her dress, impatient of details in her recital, struggling with words too long and making of them words remarkable for a strong appeal to the large audience.

Miss Rich is ably seconded by Miss Laura Werno, who has a splendid mezzo-soprano voice, great dramatic ability, and has gained much praise for herself and distinction for the company by her interpretation of humorous and dramatic readings and stories. Miss Andrews' rendition of "Mother Macneil" went home to the hearts of many. She has a full, rich, "contralto" voice, but it is as capable of tenderness as power, and the touching passages of the old ballad linger yet with those who heard it. Each member of the company is an artist and each delighted her audience.

AT THE APOLLO.

Geraldine Farrar Tonight. Geraldine Farrar, the world's supreme grand opera prima donna, to whom it is said that Jesse L. Lasky paid $2 per minute for her work in the photoplay production of "Carmen," is making her initial appearance to Jansville theatergoers at the Apollo today for a two days' engagement.

"Carmen" is the last word as production. Its scenario treats the classic subject with fine respect and is technically superior; its scenery is what only California can supply, and the photography not only does justice to it, but works wizardry with the imagination, and the direction of the play is the crowning achievement of Mr. de Mille.

But Miss Farrar's is the real triumph. She is on the screen almost constantly, the pivot of turmoil, of romance of intrigue, and if the play has incessant hold, which it has, it is because of the witchery, physical beauty and animal spirit with which she floods the rapid incidents of "Carmen's" pictured career. Miss Farrar's acting is unaffected and wholly devoid of stage devices and her greatest effects are achieved with the play of her pliant countenance, which records changes of mood with electrical speed and sharpness. The prediction may safely be ventured that she will put an end to the vogue of many a namby-pamby screen "star," by the comparison she will challenge.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"The Blindness of Virtue" Tomorrow. After a wonderful run on the stage, Cosmo Hamilton's striking drama, "The Blindness of Virtue," has been made into a strict photo play that does full justice to the original.

It is one of those plays that grip the heart with the tenderness of their appeal. The story centers about a sweet young girl, innocent and unspoiled, protected by her parents from the world—and it is the manner of their protection that is the theme of the drama. Effie's life runs smoothly, and would seem to confirm her parents' view; even the presence of Archibald Graham, staying at the house, seems no reason for further protection. Then poor Mary Ann, the story's girl, enters the same innocence but of different home life; Mary Ann and young Edward Winstanley become the focus with which the course of events, bring out with sharpness the beauty of character of Effie and Archibald Graham. The climax, when Effie rushes into Archibald's room to greet him upon his early morning return from his mission in the city, is a difficult scene, but handled by the director and players with the utmost delicacy and skill.

The fame that this play has gained for your seeing it, more than that will be the keen enjoyment you will get from seeing it and the pleasant memory that will linger.

It will be shown at the Majestic for three days, beginning tomorrow at 2:30, 4:00, 7:30 and 9:00. Prices will be 10c and 20c as usual for this class of picture.

Hank Robinson, one of the St. Louis Cardinals' pitchers, has jumped to the Feds. At any rate, Manager Miller Huggins thinks he has because of a tip he got from a friend of Rebel Oaker, the manager of the Pittsfield, who is supposed to have signed Robinson. But there is nothing to worry Huggins in the Robinson jump. When Huggins signed his players last fall for the next season, he told Robinson he would have to wait until spring for his contract, as Huggins wanted to see if his arm had recovered its strength and would pay him accordingly. Robinson did not want to take that sort of a chance and got a job with the Feds, so the story goes, but unless his arm shows remarkable reversal of form he will not be much use to his new employers.

CHAPTER III.

A Vision of the Past.

AFTER the court had settled down again to its grim duty, following the wild outburst of Strickland, the judge ordered the district attorney to proceed.

He called for Mrs. Trask after the death of Mr. Trask had been formally proved. Every head in the courtroom bent forward eagerly and curiously to get a view of the handsome widow of the slain man.

"Mrs. Trask, will you kindly take the witness chair?" directed Gray.

"Raise your right hand, please," ordered the clerk. "Do you solemnly swear that the testimony you are about to give will be the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help you God?"

"I do," was the answer in deliberate tones.

"What's your name?"

"Joan Trask."

"Mrs. Trask, are you the widow of Gerald Trask?" now continued the prosecutor.

"Yes, sir."

"How long were you married to Mr. Trask?"

"Almost fifteen years."

On all sides were made whispered comments as to the thoroughly cool and self collected bearing of this, the chief witness against the now famous prisoner. "They will never shake her testimony on cross examination," it was generally agreed.

The same idea was entertained by Gray, and he proceeded confidently, almost militant in manner, with his questions which were to settle the fate of Robert Strickland.

"Do you remember the night of June 24, 1915, Mrs. Trask?"

Without hesitation, but with drooping eyes, she answered:

"Indeed I do."

"Where were you on that evening?"

"I had been dining out with friends in the city."

"What time did you arrive home?"

"About half past 9, Mr. Gray."

The prosecutor paused momentarily, as though to emphasize the effect of his next query. He gazed with significance in his expression along both rows of men in the jury box and then went on:

"Now, Mrs. Trask, I want you to describe to the court and jury everything that occurred after you arrived home on that night."

The woman now seemed for the first time to realize just how gravely serious was the part she was to play in this real life melodrama. A flood of heart-breaking memories surged through her brain, tugged at her very heartstrings, shook her with emotion.

That night—that night of June 24—that fatal night! She turned appealingly to the judge, but received no pity. She must answer the question and do as she had sworn to do—"tell the whole truth."

She dried her nervously moist hands with her handkerchief. She tried to speak, but words would not come forth from the lips that moved. The woman of steel nerve who had excited admiration and comment at the opening of the trial now seemed verging on transformation to a physical wreck with pained tongue.

"I will repeat the question," began the prosecutor, hoping to relieve the strain of the deep silence prevailing throughout the woman's ordeal.

The woman ran back in the witness chair in a swoon as she gasped feebly, "Water, water," and the court attendants jumped to her aid.

After all, there was no just cause to wonder at the unexpected collapse of Joan Trask on the witness stand. Few people there are who could have endured what she had endured without emerging from the test—if they came out of it at all—without either health or mind vitally impaired. Years of suspense and of sacrificing for another things most dear to a true woman's heart had but ill prepared her to face the merciless prosecutor of a notorious murder trial, even though the silent victim whose blood demanded vengeance had been the man she had loved as husband.

What was it about that telephone call on the night of the slaying of Gerald Trask which, when on the stand the first day of the trial, caused her to faint at its mention?

What was there about that talk over the wire that broke down her reserve, self contained demeanor and determined poise when questioned about it by the prosecutor, when even poignant reminders of her husband's death had failed to materially move her?

What was the mystery?

Undoubtedly the prosecutor knew through her statements before the trial began and by her testimony at the coroner's inquest and in the grand juryroom.

The public, aroused to a still higher pitch of excitement over the case, awaited impatiently the resumption of Mrs. Trask's testimony. The trial, postponed for a day owing to her spectacular breakdown on the witness stand, was continued at 10:30 a. m., a day later, with Joan Trask again appearing in the role of central figure. Her eyes were clear; her voice was steady. She had conquered the weakness that had overpowered her. She had resolved to go through to the end with the part she had been called on by the authorities to fill.

And then the public began to learn as much of the inner details of the tragedy as the district attorney's office itself knew. The woman bared her heart to a gaping, thoughtless multitude that fed its morbid mind on her sorrow with the greed of a hydra headed vampire! A heyday for the cynics and the scandal mongers was the case of the people versus Robert Strickland, and they were not to be robbed of any choice morsel of their prey. No, indeed!

Now let us consider just what manner of a story it was that Joan Trask told in those soul trying hours during which she occupied the witness chair in Justice Dinsmore's tribunal.

She had heard the telephone bell in her husband's library ring as she entered the house on her return from a dinner given by a friend in honor of the wife of one of the members of a foreign embassy who had been visiting in the city. Knowing her husband to be out for the evening, she entered the library and answered the call.

The instrument was affixed to an ornate mahogany desk of modern design standing at the left of the room, a short space in front of an alcove and a few feet distant from a safe in which Trask kept valuable papers, some family heirlooms and from time to time bundles of stocks and bonds and sums of money. He frequently used large amounts of cash in his transactions at home, she testified.

A woman's voice answered when Mrs. Trask asked what was wanted, a voice that Mrs. Trask was certain that she had heard before. At any rate, she had a faint suspicion as to who was the owner of the voice—nothing definite.

"Is this 182 River?" came the query. "Yes," replied the financier's widow, who waited to the court that she had trembled visibly at the sound of the voice.

A further request to be allowed to talk to Mr. Trask was met by the response that he was not in.

"When will he be home?"

"I don't know."

"Who are you?" asked the communicant.

"I'm his wife," was Mrs. Trask's answer.

There was a pause.

"Oh, very well. Goodbye," came next, and the strange woman rang off.

Mrs. Trask turned away from the telephone, deeply distressed, almost distraught. As she did so her husband's secretary, Stanley Glover, came into the library rather hurriedly.

"I thought I heard the telephone ring," he explained.

His manner impressed Mrs. Trask as being marked by extreme anxiety and especially so when she informed him that she had answered the call.

Replying to his urgent questioning, Mrs. Trask told him that it was "A woman, as usual," who had sought to communicate with her husband.

The secretary seated himself at his employer's desk and appeared to do sire to avoid the woman's gaze. Suspecting that Glover knew something about the person, Mrs. Trask pressed him with questions, but to all he stated that he knew absolutely nothing.

Mrs. Trask became somewhat contemptuous in her attitude. "No, I suppose my husband doesn't take his secretary into his confidence to that extent, although he doesn't make any great attempt to keep things secret. He hasn't even a sense of shame."

Glover protested. "You must excuse me. You know my position, Mrs. Trask."

"Yes, of course. I don't ordinarily discuss these things, but even my endurance has its limits. I've put up with things for fifteen years now. Oh, what a fool I am to stand for it!"

"My dear Mrs. Trask," protested the secretary.

"Yes, forgive me. It was wrong of me to talk about it to you. Sometimes I lose patience. Well, we won't say anything more about it. Is Mr. Trask coming home tonight?"

"Yes," he telephoned this morning. He's coming on the 9:10 from Long Branch. It's half past 9 now. He should have been here by this time."

"I can't imagine what he's doing down there these two days."

"Golfing and fishing, I suppose."

"He might have waited until next week," Mrs. Trask said. "We'll be there all summer. By the way, I'd like you to go over my tradesmen's accounts for me before we leave the city."

"I'll do it at once. Where are the books?" was Glover's reply.

"In the safe," Mrs. Trask informed him.

It was just as Mrs. Trask had informed Glover that she would get the combination of the safe from her husband and give it to him that the sound of familiar footsteps was heard in the vestibule, a key was heard to scrape and turn in the lock of the cumbersome front door and in strode Gerald Trask.

The financier's eyes sparkled animatedly. His step and bearing were buoyant. He seemed the embodiment of health and energy and life and breath forth the atmosphere of the enjoyment of them all as he walked forward to greet his wife.

Yet it was the night of June 24, 1915. The hour was that between 9 and 10. Gerald Trask might have borne himself differently had he known what the wheel of events was whirling toward him at that hour, at that very moment.

But he did not know—he did not know.

"Hello, Joan! Hello, Glover!" was the greeting of the financier as he stepped forward.

On the part of the private secretary was seen the curious mixture of obse-queness which marks the employee who is at once the servant and the confidant of his employer. There was evident perturbation in his manner, as that of one who was oppressed perhaps by a secret of his own. But there was pity apparent, in addition, the great desire to please.

Glover stood in parloric case. Without willing it he had been forced to witness the outbreak of a wife against her husband, and that husband the man on whom his own prosperity depended. Not knowing what might be future developments in the relations between Mr. and Mrs. Trask he must perforce maintain a discreet distance between the two.

"Good evening, Mr. Trask," was his greeting to the man who entered. But the wife who had voiced but a few moments before her dissatisfaction with her husband's conduct did not reply to his "Hello."

Her silence was noticeable. Turning to her, Trask, with a mixture of cynicism and contempt, asked:

"Well, what's wrong with you again?"

The disdainful "again," implying that the man had in mind their long course of disagreement, stung the woman to the quick. It looked as though there would be a stormy scene, and Glover took hold of the edge of the desk with both hands as if to brace himself against the gathering storm.

With an effort Mrs. Trask controlled herself, and she turned away with a brief "Nothing."

"Oh, is that all?" replied Trask, and then Stanley Glover, again the suave, cool, collected private secretary, his tension relaxed, stepped into the breach.

"Allow me," he said, stepping to the side of Trask and taking his hat and overcoat. He deposited them on a chair.

"Anything new, Glover?" asked Trask.

"No, sir," replied Glover.

Hot Beds.

Some work may still be done this fall in preparation for early spring vegetables and flowers. If you are planning for a hot bed next spring now in the time to begin. Before the ground freezes a pit, not over six feet wide should be dug about two feet deep and as long as desired. If the soil is good enough to use for growing vegetables, enough should be left in the pit to give sufficient depth in which to grow the vegetables next spring, about six or eight inches being required. If the soil of the pit is not suitable, six or eight inches of good soil should be placed in the pit. This should be covered with leaves, and cutters or straw, and the ground around from freezing so that operations may be begun in the spring before the ground outside has thawed ready to work. This pit should be surrounded with a frame of boards, two feet high, in the back and one in the front, which help to hold in place the covering used in winter and to support the sash which are set in the spring in the sash. The soil must be removed and fresh horse or sheep manure put into the pit and covered with the soil which was removed. Care is needed in preparing the pit as the manure must be that must be done just previous to the use of the bed the consideration of that point may be left until later. The important point now is to get the pit ready before the ground freezes.

A Remodeled Barn.

The class in animal husbandry of the high school recently made a visit to the barn of Dr. W. A. Munn, at South Main street, and considered themselves fortunate in finding near at hand a barn so well built and equipped for dairy business, together with good a herd. Both barn and herd are small as compared with those on farms, but nearly model. The herd consists of three good grade Guernseys and seven Guernseys not only pure bred but well bred as well. The dam being the grandmother of the sire of ex-governor Hoar's fine advanced Registry herd, and the sire, which Dr. Munn owns with Marcus Kellogg, a son of the herd bull of W. J. Williams of Waukesha county, the sire is possessed of a room full of ribbons and trophies won by his stock in various state and national shows.

Dr. Munn's barn, which is being remodeled from an old one, under the direction of specialists from Cornell University, who have charge of his herd, is constructed according to latest and best plans. It has a room for twelve cows in the stanchions, and also a maternity pen and pen for the bull. The floor is of cement covered with plank where the cows stand; the stanchions are of steel and wood lined, the mangers and the pens are also of steel. There are individual drinking troughs before each cow, which are kept supplied by a tank working automatically with water, so that the animals may drink when over the wish. The King system of ventilation is to be put in. The milk of each cow is weighed at each milking and recorded on the milk sheet, which with the milk can be hung in a convenient place, so the work may be done with the least time possible. The scales are supplied with a hook on which the milk is hung. The weight is indicated by two hands, one of which gives the gross weight, the other the weight of the milk. The milk sheet hanging near the milker is able to record the weight as he reads it from the scales. Dr. Munn's dairying equipment, also includes a tester, so that he is able to keep track

RELATES HARDSHIPS
THE WAR ENFORCESLETTER FROM GERMANY TELLS OF PRIVATIONS CAUSED BY WAR.

INTERESTING LETTER

Prices of Foods Quoted to Illustrate the Gradual Rise.—Copper, Brass and Nickel at Premium.

In the following article, taken from letters received from Germany by prominent citizen who does not desire his name known, a graphic description of what might be termed "the life of the future" is given. The writer of the letters from which extracts are taken, lives in Germany and is in moderate circumstances and consequently feels the privations enforced by the government, probably more than persons affluent do. He writes: "Please do not be angry with me for not writing before, but we have but one apartment in the house and that is owned by the landlord. Petroleum is no longer here. In fact, I have an arrangement made of a night light in a jar so little by little we return to nature's ways (etc). I had a letter from a friend in the Schöneberg district who said: 'I have been today to the place where they are collecting metals. I have my own copper kettle and can use it. I can only quote some prices on copper, brass and nickel to show you what we receive for our goods. Copper, 4 marks per kilo, or if attached to other material, 3.80 marks. Brass, 3 marks per kilo, or if attached to other material, 2.10 marks. Nickel, 18 marks per kilo, or if attached to other material, 10.50 marks.

"Even if we had our lamps back again the shortage of lubricating oil is such that we could not use them. Experiments have been made to create a substitute from land and sea oil extracted from onions and even diluted molasses, but admittedly without success. It has hit the poorer class very hard as the government takes over all petroleum as fast as it can and any considerable supply.

"I have been told by soldiers returning from Belgium that all the copper wire in that country has been taken down and brought to Germany in fact as early as last February all copper in the Empire was confiscated by the government. Another thing that is short and causing much inconvenience is the lack of soap. I am told that six hundred thousand workers are out of employment and you know what this means to the working class.

"The shortage of rubber and benzene accounts for the restrictions that are enforced in the case of doctors. Even doctors are prohibited from taking even relatives with them when they go to make the rounds of their patients. Benzene is quoted on some markets at 150 marks per 100 kilo, where before the war there was a hoard of protest when it rose from 25 to 30 marks. So you see all is not plain sailing with us behind the firing line. Some people would have you believe.

"As you must know it is the middle class of whom I am one, and the poorer class, into which I am falling, when the burden falls so heavily. The rich can stay at home, cut down their expenses and continue to rub along, but the rest of us must suffer in silence. I am a soldier in this letter, my friend who comes through Sweden and may not mail it until he reaches the United States. I had a letter from R.—the other day that came by a roundabout route from Petroburg—Petrograd they call it now—and he says the many and many days there is no food on sale in the markets there so I guess Russia is also having its own troubles.

In connection with the above letter the following extract from the London Observer of recent date gives some of the prices of living that are prevailing:

How far can the rise in prices be proved to have affected the middle and the lower classes? It is not a question easy to answer. Appeal can be made once more to the statistics. The "Frankfurter Zeitung" of July 15, 1915, criticizes the main index of living, and indicates the main weekly expenses of a family of four persons arranged from 200 marks:

Such calculations have pitfalls of which the least experienced is well aware, but here is another from a Lauck paper. It gives the price of various foodstuffs in pennies per pound in August, 1915, and in the preceding August:

	Aug. 1, 1914.	Aug. 1, 1915.
Ordinary lard	64	156
Onion and liver sausage	60	120
Beef bacon	130	220
Streaky bacon	90	220
White beans	24	60
Split peas	20	54
Green peas	18	54
Meal	120	200
Wheat	120	200
Wheat sausage	110	240
Pearl barley	22	60
Best potatoes	24	10
Best rice	24	10
Best corn	50	100
Spiced lard	66	190

These, it asserts, were actual prices known to have been paid in Berlin.

At the end of August, 1915, "Vorwärts" prints a table indicating (for the purpose, no doubt, of driving home a lesson to the government) the prices per German pound of meat

Many People in This Town never really enjoyed a meal until we advised them to take a

of the German postmark another specimen as much as the best beef did before the war. "They are beginning," writes a German from Munich, "to hold back the beef in order to send some to the troops, and this, of course, is a great mortification to the Munich population; but," he adds, striking a subterfuge, "they are very good and don't grumble."

In certain of the more politically advanced states like Wurtemberg, economic pressure has had its natural place. Hitherto the town of Balingen has allowed the export of not more than 24 marks a month, together with an allowance of 3 marks a month for each child, both of these being in advance of the approaching winter and the "very great" rise in prices of provisions, the municipal allowances have been increased to 28 marks a month and for each child 3 marks a month. These rates are higher than those of Wurtemberg town, and are probably due to the fact that on the town council the socialists occupy more than half the seats. From Dresden, it may be noticed, a civilian writes on September 16: "Much is done for us who are left behind, and the only thing we cannot meet is the house rent, as the support granted is only just sufficient to cover the cost of living."

It is unnecessary to dwell at length upon the sorrows of the very poor, because it is hateful to see the innocent suffering and because, things being as they are in Germany, it may be said that the innocent are also the sufferers. It is enough to say that there is material to hand for the writing of a moving story, and at that it must be left to the novelist to visualize as an end to this new obtaining in the interior of Germany to quote the letter of a foreigner who, hardly ten days ago, passed down the Rhine to Switzerland. Road in the right way, not as a student picture, but as a piece in a mosaic, it is not without significance.

It wants the pen of a really great writer to describe what I have seen in the two days I passed through Germany. I don't know where to start. If I want to compress in a few sheets all the impressions that followed one another in rapid succession. The frontier already presented an extraordinary sight, glittering with light and uniforms. Inside, where you have to be examined, there was a disorder and efficiency which contrasted curiously enough with the quiet way in which things were done at Tübingen. As soon as I was asked where I had come from, and I had said London, there was a curious question in their eyes. Not put into words, but I found it often later on amongst men. The officer standing next to the two officers was the only one who asked, negative answer to a more said a man of education, who in other days would certainly never be found in a third-class carriage, joined me and told, talking at once. It begins to tell, came from Berlin yesterday, and there was hardly a soul on the train. Hearing I came from London, he started on every topic of the war, and I found that hidden anxiety.

After defending against an unknown accuser all their actions in Belgium, he said that the sinking of the Lusitania gave him something like a cramp. "I could only give you this man's conversation in toto, with all the undercurrents of hope and fear. In Cologne and Düsseldorf, all the other stations, not a single person of feeling anything, not even a word of complaint. Train after train of wounded passing us. In Cologne no porters of the hotels, no porters of the kind. Some pictures of extreme violence in Cologne on the station. Breakfast next morning, the deadness of the dining room gave me the hump. The far bread—it begins to tell. This people have not only given their money, they have given their health. I am a love their brown bread, but, my dearest, it took me hours and hours to digest these two slices of bread that I only downed because I had to. I'll write more tomorrow."

Does it begin to tell? That is the question we are all asking; and the answer to it will give Englishmen new insight into the military movements of their enemy, as the careful watching of his opponent enables the boxer to distinguish the feint from the lunge.

GIVE POSTAGE STAMPS FOR SMALL CHANGE AS
COPPERS ARE SCARCE

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Paris, Nov. 30.—Notices have been posted in many of the Parisian cafes that patrons who do not have the right change to pay for refreshments will have accepted postage stamps or checks for change for less than ten cents. This is another indication of the scarcity of coppers, which numerous collections for charitable purposes have withdrawn temporarily from circulation, and the fact that since small money became scarce there has been a tendency on the part of the people to cling to what they have. Some people are said to be hoarding coppers because they are afraid they will get entirely out of them, and others, it is charged, are collecting them with the less worthy motive of making five franc premium on every hundred franc in copper coins delivered at certain confidential points. It is the old story of the Germans trying to drain France of its copper. The real reason is thought in official circles to be simply that the absence of gold overworks all the minor denominations, copper and nickel as well as silver.

The mint is handicapped by the mobilizing of some of its machines for other urgent work for the national defense and the copper coinage fell last month to 100,000 francs.

IT IS OPEN SEASON
NOW FOR COACHES AT WISCONSIN VARSITY

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Nov. 30.—When asked last night if the athletic authorities had considered Walter H. Eckersall, who has been mentioned by Chicago alumni of Wisconsin as a possible ball coach here, Thelma Director George W. Ehler declared Eckersall's name had not been officially considered.

Ehler added that no candidate had been officially discussed as yet, and that until the fate of Bill Juncos is decided by the regents who assemble tomorrow the question of next year's coach will not come under consideration. The athletic authorities, Eckersall, Dobie, Warner, Mahan, Brickley and others have been suggested by students and alumni.

Athletic Director Ehler refused to let out what happened at Monday's meeting of the athletic council. Students think the Calvin affair and the question of the recommendations of that body to the regents were thrashed out and resulted in a disagreement.

BRITISH TRADESMEN
ESTABLISH BOYCOTTAmerican Business Suffers as Result of English Business Men Having Boycott Lists.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Peking, Nov. 30.—British business men in China, in what they term is an effort to prevent trading with the enemy, have adopted tactics which, they are assigned to create good feeling between neutrals and British subjects. At Shanghai and other ports with which Britishers must not trade, has been circulated. In many cases these lists have done it great injury to neutrals. Americans have suffered especially and are making frequent complaints to the American legation in Peking and to various consular offices.

Frequently these boycott lists have been made, apparently, without proper investigation. In some cases the names of neutrals which happened to be on German or Japanese lists have been included in the lists very unjustly. For a time the neutrals were not able to understand why their business was dwindling so decidedly, but now the British methods are very generally understood.

At present the Shanghai Stock Exchange is in a furor through an effort of the British members to control the action of neutral members of the exchange. A few days ago the following notice was posted on the bulletin board of the exchange:

"The Shanghai Stock Exchange is an institution incorporated under British ordinances and under British law and members are hereby notified that the committee will take all the necessary steps to uphold the British Majesty's regulations regarding enemy trading."

"Certain neutral members are believed to have entered into transactions with clients and outside brokers who are subjects of countries enemies to Great Britain. Whilst the committee is at present unable to discipline neutral members who are dealing with clients and outside brokers, it is hereby notified that any British member who knowingly deals with such offending members comes within the scope of the King's regulations."

"The protection of British members of the committee are willing to confidentially make known from time to time the names of these neutral members who are suspected of dealing with clients and outside brokers. The committee hereby notifies British members that in the event of their being found to be knowingly contravening the King's regulations in the above matter they will forthwith be suspended and information regarding their case will be laid before the Crown Advocate."

"Signed: F. Gossley, Chairman."

The exchange has four neutral members, two Americans and two Danes. Gordius Nielsen, a Dane, lost no time in taking up the cudgel for the neutrals. He addressed the following letter to the secretary of the exchange:

"Dear Sir: Referring to the notice posted by the committee today with regard to neutral members of the exchange dealing with clients and outside brokers, will you be good enough to inform your committee that I, as a neutral, have dealt with and intend to continue to deal with Germans, Austrians, Turks and Bulgarians? A neutral does not take sides, and it would be as improper if the committee's contention held good, for me to deal with Britishers if I declined to deal with subjects of the other savage belligerents."

"Neither the committee nor the British government can impose jurisdiction on me. Their only remedy, if they desire to force their attitude, is to attempt an expulsion—if they can do it. The next step would be for the committee of the Shanghai club to forbid neutral members to deal with the enemies of Great Britain or to suffer expulsion."

"That I write so plainly is because the committee have adopted the 'Committee of Safety' installation of the French Revolution with its attendant secret investigations, accusations and general hold-and-corner policy, which is one of the most despicable forms of rule, instead of fairly asking neutral members of their doings. Have the committee quite lost their heads, or is it another specimen of British stupid officialdom?"

Changes are made repeatedly by neutrals in the Chinese papers that much of the present agitation on the part of the British business men is largely selfish rather than patriotic and is being used to their own commercial advantage.

Hot Tea Breaks
A COLD-TRY THIS

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Tea," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, put a strainer over it and drink a teacup full any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

WOMAN'S PAGE

Married Life on $80 a Month

By MRS. E. L. LEONARD

"I know the man, and if I am any judge of human nature, he's honest. You are on the wrong scent, Jaynes. Dr. Elton thrust his hands into his pockets and began walking up and down the office.

"There are two or three things you will have to explain to me before I can take your view of the case," Jaynes replied, but he had been allowed to go out in the heat of discussion.

"On the other hand, Mr. Suter, have access to the safe. No one else knows the combination."

"Why Suter interrupted the doctor."

"Suter is known to be badly in debt, had his wages garnished, in fact, no honest man keeps piling up debts; debts that draw out his life, increasing instead of diminishing until his creditors are so exasperated that they have lost all confidence in the man's intentions to pay," Jaynes brought his hand down on the table to emphasize his words.

"No honest man, no, but plenty of boys, whose education, or lack of it, has made them think they must have what they want if they can't get it one way or another, and then they go to the law."

"As long as American parents give their sons and daughters no training as to how to save and spend money, allow them to run debts that they have no reasonable expectation of paying, just so long will we have to make allowance for the financial shipwreck of the young. The doctor's tone was indignant.

"The whole generation is bent on living off some one else. Off dad, if he is rich, off the public, if there is no money to fall back on. Jaynes was bitter, and the doctor remembered the prodigal son.

"And who is to blame?" asked the doctor. "Certainly not the boy. The blame lies at the door of the parents who permit such a ruinous course. Poor Suter is only a boy, he is not twenty, he is only a family. All that began until he was married. These two children married without money or training of any kind that would make them responsible for their own lives. Of course they made mistakes, and have been getting deeper in the slough every year."

"Why in the world did he marry with nothing to support a wife on?" snapped Jaynes.

"It is of a piece with the rest of his preparation for life that nothing was done to fit him for the most important thing in life, marriage. Found a good home and a family. All that was left to childish infatuation and luck. The young fellow has been making a determined effort to square himself with the world this year, at least since they came to Fairport to live."

"I understand his wife has a new silk dress. That looks like close economy," said Jaynes sarcastically. "Who knows who she is to be the wardrobe of Mrs. Suter?" asked the doctor.

"Tyler told me she came to the doctor to buy a new dress for her husband. I thought so," continued the doctor. "I happen to know that my wife gave that dress to Mrs. Suter in exchange for some work, and the two women made it over themselves. No dollar of Suter's money went into it. In my opinion Tyler has some object in putting these stories. What else?"

"He heard Suter say that he would sell his soul for three hundred dollars," replied Jaynes. "Just the amount that is missing."

"People who are contemplating robbing a safe are more careful about putting their desperation into words. It was a symptom of youth, that's all." The doctor paused before Jaynes' door. "Go ahead, if you can't afford to blurt out your man's career if he has been foolish and extravagant."

"I am not going to act hastily. I shall not the best expert in Kansas City down here to probe this thing to the bottom."

three diamonds look cheap? People who don't know much about diamonds might think they are from the recent store. The other day, I saw her for my ring and she said I was too young to wear it. And so she wouldn't give it to me. I told mother about it, but mother wouldn't say anything because my sister is very nervous and when anything is said to her that she does not like, she starts a quarrel. "Do you think she has a right to keep my ring?" I don't give it back to her. ANXIOUS.

Three diamond rings would not look cheap if they were good diamonds. You are very young to wear a diamond and might let your sister keep the ring another year for you. Be considerate of her and make her feel that you love her. There is nothing like love, to melt an older sister's heart. Try it and I am sure you can get the ring without a quarrel.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Can you give me a good remedy for freckles? (2) What should I do if when riding with a young man he keeps his arm across the back of her seat? (3) I am a common play is given it to proper for lovers to take lovers' parts in the play? TRIXIE.

(1) Two drams oxide of zinc, one and three-fourths drams of destria, one and a half drams of glycerine. Spread the paste upon the freckles at night before going to bed. In the morning remove what remains with a little powdered borax and almond oil.

This lotion is adapted to some skins and not to others. Therefore I cannot assure a positive cure.

(2) She can show him that it is unbecomingly to her by not leaning back. (3) The doctor should be to the persons most adapted to these personal relations not considered.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Would it be all right to tell a boy what you want for Christmas if he wrote and asked you? We are engaged. BLUE EYES.

It would be all right.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Ice Cream (German style)—Sponge cake cut in half in layers. Spread each layer and the top with vanilla cream. Top with whipped cream and chopped nuts, fruit or macaroon crumbs.

Care of Shoes—If the cloth tops of your shoes have turned gray they can be made to look like new by cleaning with a stiff brush dipped in gasoline.

Holiday Cake—Two and one-half pounds flour in three tea-spoons baking powder, two pounds butter, three pounds sugar, eighteen eggs, one-half pound beaten almonds, one grated coconut, one teaspoon preserved lemon peel, two tablespoons extract lemon. Bake in moderate oven two hours. When cool, ornament handsomely with icing and fancy bonbons.

Pumpkin Pie—Four eggs; three cups sugar, three pints milk, one quart pumpkin, strained, one teaspoon ginger, four tea-spoons cinnamon. This is enough for two pies.

Black Cherry Pie—One cup cranberries, one cup sugar, half cup boiling water, pinch salt, half cup seeded raisins, one tablespoon flour, one teaspoon vanilla, lump of butter. Cut cranberries in half, add sugar, salt and flour and pour boiling water over it; add berries, flavor, dot with butter. Bake with two crusts.

Hassenger—Rabbit, one onion, two cloves, one-fourth to one-half cup vinegar, one tablespoon of lard, one-fourth cup of flour. Skin and draw out rabbit, cut into parts as you would chicken, wash in salt water. Now put it into a kettle with water for boiling, add the onion, cloves, salt, pepper and vinegar (if not sour enough to suit add more vinegar). Boil for nearly two hours. Put in a frying pan, put on the fire, melt the lard and put into it the flour, stir the flour continually, letting it fry till dark brown, pour this in the rabbit, stir well into the mixture and let it boil ten or fifteen minutes, ready to serve. It may be served with toast or potatoes. Be careful in pouring the browned flour over the meat, as the rabbit steam from the hot fat and the water is apt to scald the hands.

Tea Puffs—Two and one-quarter cups of flour, three cups milk, three eggs, beat separately, three tea-spoons of melted butter, one salt. Make in muffin tins in hot oven.

Mock Oyster Soup—Boil a bunch of celery and codfish size of an egg in salt water, then drain off and chop and season with salt and add butter and cream to taste, cannot be told from oyster soup.

Potato Rissoles—Boil and mash potatoes, add salt and pepper to taste, if desired add a little parsley. Roll potatoes into small balls, cover them with an egg and breadcrumbs and fry in hot lard for about two minutes. Finely minced tongue or ham may be added if desired, good for cold or even chopped onions, when liked.

Lemon-Raisin Pie—The grated rind and juice of one lemon, one cupful of chopped seeded raisins, one-half cup of good molasses, one-half cup of sugar, one and one-half cups of water and two tablespoons of flour. Moisten the flour with four tablespoons of water in a saucepan, then add all other ingredients, bring to boiling point and boil for five minutes. Cool and bake between two crusts.

"Mocha" Squares—Make a cake of one cup butter, two cups sugar, one cup milk from eggs, two cups when eggs are high. Beat whites and yolks separately. Use 2½ cups flour. After cake is baked, cut in squares of about 1½ inches. Take powdered sugar, mix with a very little tart fruit juice, corn squares and dip in chopped peanuts. These are almost like candy.

Cornbread—One-half cup sugar, one-half cup melted lard, one egg, one cup milk, one tea-spoon soda, one pint corn meal, one pint flour, pinch of salt.

Veal Klopps—Two cups minced veal, salt and pepper to taste, juice of one lemon, a little grated lemon rind, the unbroken whites of three eggs. Add the onion juice, seasoning and lemon rind to the minced

SIDE TALKS

By RUTH CAMERON

That Christmas Shopping.

How about that Christmas shopping? I hope you have already done it, but if you haven't, may I make a few suggestions in regard to it?

In the first place, go dressed as simply and lightly as possible. My method has been to wear a medium weight suit and a long coat, and to check the coat when I reached the shopping district. Of course I have to walk any distance between shops I put it on again, but when the shops are close together I find I can catch cold, as I am not over-heated. Of course this saves you the clothing. Wear a small, light hat, have a bag that will hold your small parcels, so that you won't have the mental strain of trying to keep track of five or six little bundles.

These little things, but every little thing helps or hinders at a time like this.

Plan Your Campaign.

Of course you'll make out a list before you start. Don't simply jot down the things you have to get, but plan your campaign. Decide what shops you want to visit for various gifts, make out a route and put the same of each shop all the things you need to get.

Go in the morning if you possibly can, the earlier the better, not only for the sake of the shop girl but for your own sake. The ratio of accomplishment between morning and afternoon I have always found to be about two to one. One woman whom I know gets her list, her clothes and everything absolutely ready the night before, so that she can go in town when her husband goes. Yes, her husband has to wait, but her kitchen isn't crowded in the afternoon and the shops are.

Don't shop for so long a time at a stretch that you get faint. Stop and eat something hot. You can afford to spend the time and the money better than you can afford to save them. You'll get both your money's and your time's worth in efficiency.

A "Thank You" Costs Nothing.

Look pleasant. Thank the shop girl who waits on you. Smile at the crowd instead of glaring at them. After all this isn't supposed to be a joyless struggle, this Christmas business, but an expression of the love of man for his Maker and his fellow-men, the flowering of the Christian spirit of brotherhood. If you haven't some of this spirit toward shop girl and crowd and friends and enemies, though you give far more than you can afford, though you wear out your soul and body in shopping tours, you have not Christmas.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

TURPENTINE.

Oil of turpentine is by all odds the best local application we know for colic. Whether the colic be due to gas, gallstones, chronic appendicitis, or other undiagnosed condition accompanied with acute attacks of pain and perhaps flatulence or gas formation, turpentine is a most efficacious home remedy we can mention.

But it matters a great deal how the turpentine is administered. It is very useful as a carminative and soothing agent when given internally to an adult (not to a child) in the dose of about five drops in some sugar or in a capsule. One dose is sufficient. It should not be repeated.

But the better effect is obtained by the local application of turpentine in the shape of the turpentine stupe.

A little turpentine goes a great way. Too much will blister. Here is the way to use turpentine stupe:

Take a large woolen or flannel cloth, drop it into water in a basin (by means of a stick or fork (it is too hot to handle), and wring it out thoroughly by means of the broomsticks, which can be twisted by two persons.

Now, just before applying the cloth to the patient's anxious abdomen sprinkle over it about five or ten drops of turpentine. Then put the turpentine bottle away, for you will need any more of it this season.

The stupe should be changed as soon as the heat is gone—every fifteen minutes or so—regardless of the patient's vigorous protests. Heat must be just a wee bit more than the patient thinks he can stand if it is to be effective. Over the top of a flannel may be placed to keep the clothing dry.

Sometimes a few drops of turpentine may be added to a soap and water or glycerin and water, and the salts and water enema just before it is given—for adults only. But the local influence of turpentine, in the shape of the stupe, is by all odds the most favorable in all cases of abdominal colic.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Can a doctor diagnose a case of diphtheria without taking a culture from the throat? Can a culture from the throat be reported "positive" when the patient has some other throat trouble than diphtheria? Answer—Certainly he can, if he knows his business. In fact the culture is only confirmation of the doctor's diagnosis. If the doctor says diphtheria, and the culture is reported "negative," the doctor is more likely right. If the culture is reported "positive," it only proves there are living diphtheria germs in the throat—but many healthy children harbor diphtheria germs without having the disease. The culture is a very trustworthy guide. Your doctor's opinion is the only safe guide.

Hoffman's Anodyne.

Please inform me whether Hoffman's Anodyne is considered a good remedy for the relief of flatulence, in teaspoonful doses.

Answer—It is an old remedy for flatulence. One or two doses, in a little cold water should be enough. It contains ether.

England Pays Tribute to Women by Naming Suffragette Official.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Nov. 30.—The appointment of a prominent suffragist leader, Miss Smith, as an assistant secretary in the British legation at Christiania is a departure in British policy and a tribute to the work of British women in the war. When the campaign for the war was being waged, Miss Smith, Sir Edward Grey, declared himself a supporter of equal rights for the sexes, and several members of Parliament asked if the Minister of Foreign Affairs would declare the courage of his convictions by appointing women to the diplomatic service. A practical answer to the question has now been given. Nor does the move mean a concession in this movement, having a woman secretary of legation on its own diplomatic roll.

Miss Pressley Smith has been the organizer of the National Union for Suffrage in Edinburgh for the last two and a half years, and since the war began has shown fine organizing ability in the management of societies for the relief of soldiers and sailors, and their families. Prominent advocates of the woman's movement have been urging the government to open the higher branches of the civil service to women and have called for public service, except the army and the church.

Miss Pressley Smith was one of a band of women who went into the fields as berry-pickers to obtain first-hand knowledge of the conditions of the women workers. The result of their experience was to persuade employers to raise wages, and to furnish decent shelter and food for the women and their children, who are drafted from the cities in summer by the great canning firms.

ENGLISH WORKING WOMEN DISCARD MEN'S UNIFORMS.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Nov. 30.—The trouser-clad women window-cleaners who began their work bravely in men's overalls a short time ago, have now reverted to skirts and blouses. "It was more than the women could stand," declared one of the women regarding the reception accorded their dress reform movement by the populace.

The Nottingham factory girls were the first to discard the men's uniform, which consisted of a jacket and trousers closely resembling a workman's overalls. Crowds of girls followed the trouser-clad women through the streets, asking questions and giving loud cheers. The women went to their employers and protested. Now they are wearing skirts once more.

QUEEN MARY WILL GIVE EVERY TOMMY XMAS GIFT; PREPARE FOR THE WINTER.

London, Nov. 30.—The armies in northern France are preparing for another winter campaign. Relief societies in England are taking extraordinary precautions to see that the trench-dwellers do not endure hardships such as they endured last year. Within two months, every mile of British and Belgian trench will have been equipped with square, boxlike charcoal and coke trench heaters, es-

LIFE BEGINS TO STIR AT WASHINGTON CAPITOL

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—The capitol is waking up. Through the summer and fall the tourists held almost uninterrupted sway in the big building. Now the constant stream of sightseers is being augmented by solemn western statesmen in Stetson hats and southerners in black felt hats and dusty Prince Alberts; by hurrying messenger boys and porters with great piles of government documents. The Sixty-fourth Congress opens early in December. The tunnel to the office buildings are being whitewashed, committee rooms dusted out and the great army of employees which serves the two houses is moving in. The two halls, locked and dark since August, are open and workmen are rehabilitating them. The dust is being swept out of the galleries, and the litter accumulated in committee rooms is being carted away.

EAGLES ARE INCREASING AMONG SCOT HIGHLANDS; OFF AMERICAN DOLLARS?

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Nov. 30.—Owing to strict preservation, eagles are increasing rapidly in numbers among the Scottish Highlands and nearby islands. As many as five eagles have recently been seen at once in Sutherland, while in Archaetan, where none of the birds had been seen for a generation, several have been observed within the past few weeks. In the island of Rùm, the big birds are so numerous that they have repeatedly blundered into traps set for rats.

Inheritance, good and bad, are constantly being handed down to new generations.

Greater knowledge of the sciences, of nature's relationship with man, and of better ways of living, are the priceless gifts we will hand down to our children and our children's children.

But of all the gifts that will be given to the world electricity is the greatest—the most valuable—from every point of view.

A country-wide celebration of electricity has been planned for the week of November 29th to December 4th. Show your full approval of this better way of "doing things" by resolving to learn more about electricity—to extend its use in your daily household tasks.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) For the past four years I have been keeping company with a certain young man of this city. I think the world of him, but at times he doesn't seem to care about me, and again he seems to think everything I say is never spoken of marriage, and so I feel that I have gone with him long enough, and still I dislike breaking off with him. A few months ago I met another man who is an engineer. He has been married before, but his wife is dead. This man comes to see me very often and has proposed to me. I could never think as much of him as I do the other man, although I don't fully trust him (I mean the one I love).

As it is every girl's ambition to have a home, feel justified in accepting this railroad man's kindly offer. If I did would I be doing justice to either of the men? I am an orphan and have been without a home so long that I feel I want to grasp this offer.

(2) Can you tell me what makes young people's hair go gray over the temples? Is it very gray and in fact almost white over the temples. BROWN EYES.

(1) Since you do not trust the man give him up because you could not be happy with him if you lacked confidence in him. You alone know whether you love the engineer enough to marry him.

(2) Worry or sickness might cause gray hair and sometimes it runs in families.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am sixteen years old. About two years ago I got a diamond ring from my parents as a gift, but the band was too big for me and so I gave it to my unmarried sister to wear because she asked me to. She has one of her own and she wears mother's and mine. That makes three in all. Don't you think

Forty Years Ago

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Nov. 30, 1875.—The let-up of the thermometer, a little sunshine, and a moderately cool atmosphere, brought into the city today hundreds of teams, and consequently business was brisk.

Charles Hill was arrested some time since for maiming John Herington. He and John got into a personal quarrel and the little finger of the latter happened to get into Charles' mouth. The result was Charles let down and nearly took off the finger. The bite was so severe that the little member was amputated. Hill was taken before Justice Patten, tried on the charge of maiming, but was acquitted today, the justice considering that one was as deep in the mud as the other was in the mire.

The aggregate amount of real estate transfers in Rock county for the week ending the twenty-ninth were $85,902.

EUROPEAN TRADE WILL NOT CEASE WHEN WAR STOPS

Volume of Business Between United States and Europe Will Increase Says Robert Pinot.

(By Associated Press.)

Paris, Nov. 30.—That the volume of business between the United States and Europe will not cease with the war, that the United States will not for several years have to fear European competition in manufactured products, is the opinion expressed here by Robert Pinot, general secretary of the Comité des Forges de France. This organization is the official representative of the Creusot works and all the other iron and steel manufacturers of France and the medium through which the French government is now securing large quantities of war munitions for the use of the French and Russian armies. In an interview, Pinot said: "It is unfortunately true that we must look to the United States for several years to supply us with money or credits and with raw and manufactured materials. I say this is unfortunately true because I realize that we will be working for the next twenty years to pay what we owe. Not before that time can we begin to turn our profits in our own pockets. The fear that so soon as the war is ended the manufacturers now busy making arms and cannon and shells will convert their factories into the making of provisions to compete with yours is unfounded."

"While we French iron and steel men have been doing surprising work in our munitions, while we are turning out more than the English factories, while our people have shown a marvelous example of improvisation, while we have done all this with our best plants and our mines in the hands of the Germans, we are not superhuman. We cannot turn around so soon as the war is over and begin flooding your home markets, because of our cheaper labor, or compete with you in your foreign markets. How can we? We will first have the enormous task of rebuilding our old steel plants of reconvert our automobile, button, cloth, printing, and railroad shops all now busy making munitions, back to their old uses. We will have to try to repair the vast material destruction that has come with the war. Then we will have to do our best to satisfy our own home markets. To do these things we will have to continue to buy of you, as we are now doing for war supplies."

"What chance is there for the American to do a steady business with us long after the war is over to follow up and establish himself in the business now begun? I am not a prophet, and the war is not yet over. But here is a fact to be considered by the American manufacturer. So far, as concerns France, we iron and steel men had begun to do a surprising business in the few years before the war. We were not only filling the demands made in this line on the home market, but we were beginning to go into the foreign trade. France had almost ceased to be an agricultural nation. I believe too, that our products were the most perfectly made in the world. They were made to stand up, to wear. I won't say that we were right in manufacturing this way, that the American method is not the better; but our customers demanded long wearing articles, and we satisfied their demands. An American locomotive is built to last seven years, whereas the railroads we supply want them to last thirty years. This is a condition the American must meet in future competition with us. In connection with the reconstruction of the French factories destroyed in the North of France, referred to by Mr. Pinot, a current report from the United States and shows that France is now using more American cotton than ever before the war. Of this year of such imports were six million metric quintals of 100 kilos each. Before the war France had 700,000 cotton spindles and 120,000 looms. At the end of 1914 but 25 per cent, or 1,800,000 were in operation, due to the German invasion of the Vosges and Lille districts. Now 40 per cent, or 3,000,000 spindles are in operation with 4,200,000 still idle. There is a prospect for large orders of American railway supplies being placed in France. The Northern and Eastern railways suffered severely by the German invasion, and the other four large railway systems are badly in need of new material of all kinds. While the latter four railways have during the present year, earned over 70 per cent of their normal receipts for freight and passengers, they delayed placing orders for new material until this fall. So far American car firms have taken orders for 10,000 freight cars, March delivery. Other orders amounting to more than twenty million dollars were being placed by the French roads when the Balkan situation interfered with available ocean freights and now these orders are either being delayed or being placed in England. The Southern Railway ordered 3,000 cars from a Belgian firm newly established in Spain when this freight situation developed, otherwise this order would have gone to an American firm.

GERMAN PUBLISHERS IN PROTEST ON PROHIBITION OF EXPORTING BOOKS

Berlin, Nov. 30.—The Association of Publishers and the Union of Medical Publishers have joined in petition to the Prussian and Saxon war ministers for the revocation of the prohibition of the export of German medical books and other publications. These may not be exported even to neutral countries. The petitioners assert that German medical literature stands at the head of the world's literature on medical science, and that through the export prohibition, it is menaced with the loss of its position. "It is also to be considered," says the petition, "that if the fruits of German medical science are withheld from enemy countries, the wounded and sick German soldiers who have fallen into captivity there will have to suffer from it."

TRADE COMMISSION HEARS COMPLAINTS

Federal Board Will Attempt to Solve "What Is Unfair Competition" In Trade.

(Special to the Gazette.)
Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—"What is unfair competition?" The Federal Trade Commission, after months of trying to find out, is about where it began on that question. Ask members what is unfair competition, he'll parry with the plea that you ask him about some individual case. Complaints to the commission show that every sort of competition which can't be met seems unfair to the man who can't meet it; and the defense offered indicate that anything goes in the rough and tumble game of business.

In the new cafeteria stores in some places in the east a man may go in help himself and be checked out at the door. That makes it possible, say the merchants, to sell a 15-cent article for 13 cents. Grocers brand such competition unfair.

Or take the chain-stores, buying in large quantities at cut prices, even on standard articles. Ordinary retailers stand at a disadvantage when they write the commission about these establishments. They tell them the big concern which sells a 20-cent article for 15 cents in another town and for 25 cents in another, to crowd out a competitor in the 15-cent district. "We're big and entitled to take advantage of bigness," such concerns tell the commission.

Then there's the man who finds that someone is imitating his first class goods and selling under his price. The man who makes a standard article and cannot keep some retailers from knocking a cent or two on its price to attract other trade.

There have been approximately 100 types of complaints filed, ranging in merit from what the commission considers merely a case of more efficient business conduct to a number of cases of downright skull duggery. There are, so what is not fair in one state is o. k. in another.

Wherefore the invitation. If anyone thinks he knows what is unfair competition, will he kindly drop a line or two to the commission?

PANAMA WAGE QUESTION TO COME BEFORE CONGRESS DURING COMING SESSION

Panama, Nov. 30.—The Panama Canal Employers Association has agreed that the proposition regarding maintenance of the wage scale and conditions of employment, and the proposition of cash bonus along the same line as given the army, navy and marine corps officers who serve three years on the isthmus, shall be pressed before the attention of congress in December. For some months the employees have been split into two factions, the union men urging that the maintenance of the wage scale be given precedence in the campaign in Washington, while the higher salaries in the administration branches wanted their bonus proposition given first place. The conduct of the resignation of the directors of the association, and the election of a new board, all the members of which are now pledged to support the two propositions on equal basis.

A legislative committee of three have departed for Washington where work will be begun preparing the two proposals that are to be presented to congress at the December session. It is probable that the committee will open offices in Washington for this purpose.

It is understood here that the efforts of the employees for a bonus for three-year men has the support of Major General George W. Goethals, U. S. A., governor of the Panama Canal, and that he has committed himself in writing to support the proposal before congress. His attitude regarding the wage scale and condition of employment is not so well defined but it is said he is opposed to it, believing that the employees are now obtaining better pay and more perquisites than those similarly employed in the United States.

FRENCH ACCOMPLISH BIG REFORM IN ARAB COLONY (By Associated Press.)

Fes, Morocco, Nov. 30.—The trip from the Atlantic coast to Fes, that people talked of ten years ago with about the same apprehension as of an Arctic expedition, is today as agreeable and restful excursion, according to members of a French delegation who came here from Rabat on an official mission to the court of Sultan Moulay Youssef. Even the Berbers who revolted last November and were taught a severe lesson by the French troops at Khenifra, come down from their mountain retreats now on to sell their mutton and are as gentle as their beasts. They saluted the delegation with great respect. The street Arabs of Fes, who in other days amused themselves by spitting at the foreigners, hastened up to carry the luggage of the delegation and show the way into the town.

Fes, in these war times, is a town of majestic tranquility; the surrounding region is as calm as the New England hills; the war seems hopelessly distant to the Moroccans, though at the palace its developments are followed with almost as much interest as in the capitals of Europe.

The Sultan, after his daily siesta, has the western despatches brought in and listens with sustained interest to explanations of any modifications in the situation, though with less interest, perhaps, than that with which St. Guebbas, the Grand-Vizier, who was educated in England and follows the progress of events by the aid of large maps of the theatres of operations, suspended on the mosaic walls of his reception salons.

PORTUGAL, REMOTE FROM WAR ZONE, SUFFERS FOR SUPPLIES

Lisbon, Portugal, Nov. 30.—Portugal is more remote from the seat of war than any other country in Europe, but it is suffering from the scarcity of food that is as serious as that in some of the belligerent countries.

Provision stores and depots are the scenes of almost daily riots in protest against the conditions. On the night of October 21, for instance, a mob of 2,000 men, some of them armed with pick axes and other implements, stormed the provision store of an important English dealer in the Almada district and plundered the place. The republican guard, which crossed the river to restore order, was received by the mob by shots and bombs. The guard fired several volleys and numerous persons on both sides were wounded.

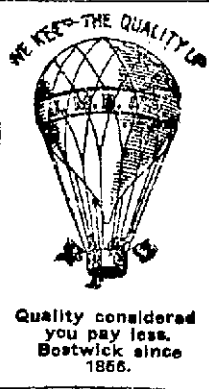

The scarcity of food is due in part to the fact that successive governments of Portugal have bound themselves to supply the army with certain quantities of provisions sent to Lisbon. Under this agreement large numbers of cattle and miscellaneous provisions are sent out of the country every week with the result that there has been almost no meat in the markets of Lisbon. The egg supply is also less than half of what it is in ordinary times, the shortage being partly due to the fact that a good many eggs are sent surreptitiously over the border into Spain, where they may be sold for double the price fixed officially by the government in the food markets here.
